OPERATION REDFACE

What is happening all around us? Is the world suddenly becoming a better place to live in? More secure, less militarizing, with the shadow of nuclear war receding and the arms race being contained under the impact of what may turn out to be a New Detente ? .... doesn't one notice a whole array of happenings that have so far at any rate, provided grounds of hope and expectations of still better things happening? .... (p 209, Alternatives XIV, 1989)

From the Centre of Development Studies, Dehli, India, Rajni Rothari author of The New Detents: Some Reflections from the South, observes the magic wrought by the Okhotsk Card played recently in "superpower" relations. Countering the US logic of confrontation at the Summit, The USSR's logic of understanding played its Okhtosk Card while opposing War with Peace... War blinked and retired into the nether regions of Ignorance.

The USSR received the Okhotsk Card on a silver platter when US Operation RedFace's concocted brouhaha exploded into multiple assassination. Absorbing the Evil-Empire media-event, the Soviets wrote its backlash into summitry's agenda. Reviewing the chronology of this boomerang affirms the Kothari reflections.

Operation RedFace was designed to scotch the '82-'83 Peace movement and go one-up on the Soviets by making them appear to have shot-down a civilian airliner off-course over Soviet territory. A Project Democracy climax to the 1983 North Pacific Fleetex manoeuvres, the dénouement was to be the re-appearnce of the airliner responding to the fighter's wiggle-waggle, tracers and missiles by requesting instructions to land safe on Sakhalin. (cont'd)

A US congressman is aboard the airliner. Fortunately no extra fuel is required and after outrage and shouting in circles, he is permitted to resume his trip to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the US-SKorea military pact in Seoul. The Soviets' loss of face will fund the MX, flatten the Peace movement, postpone Soviet withdrawal of tropps from Afghanistan and kickoff Campaign Re-election '84.

Operation RedFace starts smoothly enough as KA 007 drifts off-course to rendezvous with an RC-135. A one-blip dance routine fools the Russian radar operators into thinking an intelligence plane is overflying Kamchatka. Special Stealth gear on KA 007 prevents anyone from getting a firm fix on it during the 38-minute traverse. KA 015, only a few minutes behind KA 007, but on course R-20, relays KA 007's false positions to the a i r controllers ... no one's suspicious.

Now over the Sea of Okhotsk, in another one-blip dance routine, a Stealth Prototype, SP, plane relieves KA 007 of the intruder aeroplane duty. Overflying Sakhalin, the SP draws fighter tracer and missile fire before flying away home to Misawa ? Okinawa ? Shemya ?

Three minutes after missile-launch, as KA 007 positions itself to request landing instructions on Sakhalin, remote detonation of a device planted aboard in Anchorage, explodes KA 007 into the Sea of Okhotsk .... EXPLO ..PPFFFFTT ... disparu ....

Newcasts place it on course at checkpoint NOKKA and/or due south of Nemuro .... landing on Sakhalin and/or down in the Sea of Japan. As lies and/or disinformation these four are hard to beat.

Twenty and a half hours later, at quarter to midnight, Tokyo TV carries the US Secretary of State accusing the Soviet Union of shooting down an unarmed civilian airliner and murdering all 269 aboard. Surpassing anything Operation RedFace ever imaginged, Evil-Empire bashing takes off like a prairie fire.

Nine days after "shootdown", 10 September, the first debris from the crash surfaces NOT in the Sea of Japan where the US President, Secretary of State and UN Ambassador told the world but more than two hundred miles away on a Sea pf Okhotsk beach. Nine days for a B-747 its cargo, baggage, passengers and crew to surface over two hundred kilometers away in the wrong sea? How much longer will the investigative media print PWM's releases so the public can enjoy scrambled lies for breakfast, warmed-over balòney for lunch and Fabricattori Florentino for dinner? Small wonder high cholesterol is epidemic.

Four days later, 14 September, the Congress, lacking the ghost of Wayne Morss, votes unanimous Soviet censure and funds MX as protection. At an Air Force Association dinner, the President's National Security adviser vents his hood-winked spleen by telling the guests KA 007 definitely was not on a spy mission and some good, even a summit may come from this tragedy. OPERATION REDFACE Continued? → GE's PLUTONIUM

Fifty-four days after "shootdown", 25 October, in a mirror-reflection of its anti-communism half a globe away, PWM invades Grenada, obliterating the mental hospital for good measure. The Pershings are set for deployment. The Soviets postpone withdrawal from Afghanistan. The fruitless search by four navies in the 1,200-foot depths of the Sea of Japan is abandoned. The media genuflects as Puppet Number 4 stands tall for re-election.

Meanwhile back at the Kremlin, on the second day, 2 September, the remains are discovered over and under the Sea of Okhotsk. Too late to stem the Tide of Evil-Empire, the Kremlin Doves button their collective lip, observe in disbelief and meditate in horror.

Thirty-seven months later at Reykjavik, 10 October 1986, the Kremlin Doves, promising to sit on and hatch their Okhotsk Card in camera, invite the White House Warriors to a disarmament pas de deux in three-quarter time intoning the gospel according to Saints Nikita and Dwight.

The Warriors come out sputtering SDI as the Doves' Peace offensive seeps into every nook and cranny of this neighborhood we all call Earth, assuring the coming decade of autonomy, arbitration and anarchism that "foreigner" and "force" will be expunged from man's behaviour to man universally and forever.

Seventy-one months after "shootdown", 2 August 1989, a Washington DC jury awards fifty million dollars to the 137 victims' families that sued. This $364,964 per family stems from an agreement between Prosecution, Defense and The Court to bar discussion of KA 007's "shootdown" position over Sakhalin Island. Ca vas sans dire.

This fifty million is hush-money. Eevery attorney on the case and every administration officer from the president down knows how to cope with the patsies of the past twenty-five years. They all know fraud and Coverup when they see them; they know how to play dumb. Divide the fifty million by the 269 deaths: $185,874, par for Coverup but one helluva long way from minimal human decency. It's a bribe.

And now abideth Capitalism, Communism and Moneyism. And the greatest of these is Moneyism. In establishing that KA 007 was never over Sakhalin, the Okhotsk Card, Operation RedFace's boomerang, sets the price of murder well above this measeley two-hundred grand. ▽

As GKG was set for the Printer, a call from President Emeritus Anti-Nuclear Coalition US, incensed over GENERAL ELECTRIC's proposed rocketing a PLUTONIUM-toting satellite into space on Columbus Day, 12 Oct 89, stopped the presses.... Has success of remote detonation over the Sea of Okhotsk suggested remote detonation of PLUTONIUM over Moscow? mon Dieu!

What other purpose does PLUTONIUM serve in our atmosphere? what on earth good is PLUTONIUM there? a challenger-type accident would take our class secretary along with Florida and part of Georgia ... we need him.

Call the President of GE at (203)335-1717 and protest ... GKG will alert Presidents Harvard, UUA and USSR ... call the UN, the Congress, the media, unions, churches, environmentalists, CFR, Trilaterals, anyone you can and tell them to call the WhiteHouse and knock off this PLUTONIUM garbage. ▼

Ø323 : KA 007 reports FL 350

Ø327 : Someone handy-by, either a witness to missile-launch or informed of it by someone else, remotely detonates a device previously planted aboard KA 007 in Anchorage
